

Short CV

Dr Efstathia Tsakali is an Associate Professor of Dairy Technology at the Department of Food Science and Technology and a member of the Research Laboratory “Food and Beverages’ Safety and Quality” at the University of West Attica. She is a Food Technologist with a PhD in Functional food of Animal Origin from the University of Bari, Italy (2012) and a MSc in Food Production Management from the University of Nottingham, UK (2005). She has 18 years of working experience in the food industry mostly on Food Safety Management and Quality Control. She has been a visiting Professor at KU Leuven since 2015 and an affiliated member of KU Leuven BioTeC+ research team since 2012. She acted as an Adjunct Lecturer at the Department of Food Technology - T.E.I. of Athens (2012-2018) and a lecturer in 3 MSc courses in Greece and Belgium.

Dr Tsakali’s research interests focus on applications of dairy technology and she has participated in 22 National and European Research programs, coordinating 5 of them. Her published work includes several research papers in international peer-review journals, books and book chapters, Oral and poster announcements in International Conferences and a patent.